Promotion of your Seminar

Our online Media Kit provides a variety of useful materials that your church may use in the promotion of your event. Items include speaker biographies, seminar synopses and several promotional posters. Please note that the Media Kit is located at www.brettullman.com and select 'media.faith.culture'.

Preparing your students for a talk

In preparation for your media.faith.culture seminar, we recommend that you begin a dialog with your students about the media they consume. Attached is a Media Survey from the Walt Mueller's Centre for Parent and Youth Understanding (CPYU) which is an excellent tool to assist you in this process. It provides a good overview of the media pursuits of your students. Please note that if you would like to view a PDF version of this survey, one can be obtained from the CPYU @ <http://www.cpyu.org/Page.aspx?id=77102>.

Preparing your Parents of Teens (POT) for a talk

The media.faith.culture seminar addresses many hot topics for students such as sex, pornography, cutting, suicide, drugs, alcohol and violence. Some of your students will be quite familiar with these topics however for others, our seminar may evoke some questions. To ensure that the parents of your students are ready to field important questions after the seminar, we recommend that you touch base with them prior to the seminar to alleviate concerns and offer direction. Please note, we also offer a media.faith.culture seminar for parents which is an excellent complement to the student seminar. If you have booked a student seminar exclusively and would like to additionally book a parent seminar, please let us know via e-mail and we can adjust your booking.

De-Brief for media.faith.culture

In order for your church to draw the full benefit of the media.faith.culture seminar, we recommend that you prepare not only for the actual speaking engagement but also for ongoing follow-up.

Immediately after the seminar

This seminar introduces discussions about many different topics which can be difficult for students to grapple with and your students will express their struggles in different ways. Some may get angry, some become very quiet while other may conceal their thoughts. You know your students and will need to watch for changes in mood, attitude and behaviour after the seminar as these may be indicators that they are dealing with some of the issues that were raised. In addition, some of your students may truly work to apply some of the practical aspects of their faith in the weeks following the seminar. They may try to listen to more positive music, use discernment when choosing the video games they play or make better choices when dealing with sex, drugs or alcohol. Encourage them in their choices and recognize their efforts.

One month after the seminar

After about a month, it is important to revisit the discussions from this seminar. We recommend that you touch base with your students to find out how they are doing. Encourage your students to share the struggles they are dealing with or have dealt with. Promote the sharing of how your students are attempting to deal with these struggles and the hurdles they have overcome in the process.

Ongoing

As you are undoubtedly aware, the topics raised in the media.faith.culture seminar are ongoing. They are issues that continually challenge students and are therefore important to address within churches. Whether or not you choose to host follow-up seminars in the future, it is important that the issues of our culture are dealt with consistently. We recommend that your church establish a number of people that your students can speak with. Appointing 'safe' people of both genders will ensure your students can be open about any issue they wish to discuss and that the lines of communication remain open for them.

If you have any other questions or concerns please contact us. Thank you and we look forward to working with your group.
